HOW TO TURN A TSHIRT INTO A SCARF

Place your tshirt onto a flat surface with the neck opening to your left and the bottom opening to your right.

Discard the top part of the tshirt. This can be chopped up for use for stuffing cushions or soft toys.

Lay out the cut-off piece with the open ends to your left and right and the closed ends top and bottom.

Cut strips about 1 inch thick but stop about 1 or 2 inches from the top.

Your shirt will now have one solid band across the top

If you carefully open that top part of the shirt to see where each strip stops, you very carefully gather this into your hand.

Take a piece of ribbon and carefully wrap around and around to cover that piece about 4 or 5 inches.

To do this first make a small loop with one end of the ribbon:

Place this against the gathered section of the tshirt and carefully start to wrap around but leave a small tail out at the end and work up towards the loop:

When you get to the top, thread the end through the loop and then carefully pull both ends of the ribbon to secure.

Then gently pull each strip and allow the material to curl.

You can add as many other embellishments as you can think of such as old jewellery or other textiles.
